

TRUSTING THE GOD OF IMPOSSIBILITIES
FAILING TO CONNECT THE DOTS
MARK 6:45–52

The Heart of the Matter

Throughout His earthly ministry, Jesus remained fully focused on mentoring His disciples. After all, He would ultimately leave everything in their care. Each passing moment brought them closer to the day when He would leave this planet and return to the Father. At that point, they would be His representatives; they would proclaim His message and model His life. In light of that goal, each experience, every trial, and all events were designed to assist in their spiritual growth. Regrettably, it didn't always "click." There were occasions when the disciples simply didn't "get it." While they saw what Jesus did and heard the things He said—and occasionally even participated in significant miracles—they did not always "connect the dots." It wasn't that their eyesight or their hearing was faulty, but, like us occasionally, they had heart problems.

Discovering the Way

1. Remember the Impossible Meal That Happened (Mark 6:41–44)

Remember, the disciples served the continuous miracle of bread and fish to more than 5,000 people.

2. Observe the Servers That Same Evening (Mark 6:45–52)

That evening, the disciples struggled in the boat at sea, and when they saw Jesus, they were terrified of the "ghost" on the water. But when Jesus boarded the boat, the sea grew calm—astonishing the disciples. Why were they surprised?

Starting Your Journey

We often fail to connect the dots in our own lives because of two reasons. First, our minds refuse to believe God is who He says He is. Second, our hearts refuse to trust God to do what He says He will do.

Tools for Digging Deeper

Trusting the God of Impossibilities
by Charles R. Swindoll
CD series

Simple Faith: Discovering What Really Matters
by Charles R. Swindoll
CD series

Simple Faith: Discovering What Really Matters
by Charles R. Swindoll
softcover book

To order any of these related resources, call 0800-915-9364
or visit www.insightforliving.org.uk